Tacoma Professional Organizer, Christine Radio, Earns Certified Professional Organizer Designation

Christine Radio, an Organizing Specialist with Eliminate Chaos in Tacoma, WA earned the prestigious designation of Certified Professional Organizer®. Christine is one less than 300 in the nation to receive this designation, and one of only 13 in Washington State.

Certification by The Board of Professional Organizers (BCPO) was developed by NAPO, The Organizing Authority® and is a voluntary certification for Professional Organizers. Certification recognizes professionals who have met specific qualifications and who have proven to possess a body of knowledge and experience required for the organizing industry.

"I'm very pleased to be a part of the organizing industry's credentialed body of professionals - a group of people who are committed to raising the standards of service and providing industry best practices," stated Christine.

Eliminate Chaos was founded by organizing productivity consultant, author and speaker – Laura Leist, CPO. Today, Eliminate Chaos is the largest organizing service firm in the Greater Seattle area with offices located in Seattle, Tacoma, Bellevue, Mill Creek and Snohomish.

"I am proud of Christine's commitment to furthering her expertise in the organizing industry – which her clients will directly benefit from," stated Leist of one of their seven specialists. Leist also mentioned that "two of our specialists are slated to sit for the Certified Professional Organizer exam later this year." In an industry where there are new organizing companies starting every day, Leist believes that "Businesses and Homeowners have more options than ever when hiring a Professional Organizer that is qualified to execute the project. We want our clients to recognize that we hire exceptional employees that have a background in organization before they are even trained in our processes. We recognized that you don't have to hire the Business Owner, who is also the Professional Organizer, to get fabulous results."
